EUSA TEACHING AWARDS

Excellent teaching across the School of History, Classics and Archaeology is regularly recognised and acknowledged by our students in the annual Edinburgh University Student Association (EUSA) Teaching Awards.

The student-led awards recognise the teachers, support staff and students who have made a positive impact on students' learning experience. The School has enjoyed a high proportion of success over the years since the awards began in 2009.

School awards

Year	Award	Winner
2015	Best Course	France Since 1940 (taught by Dr Emile Chabal, History)
2015	Best Course - runner up	The Nuclear Cold War in Policy and in Public, 1945-1989 (taught by Dr Malcolm Craig, History)
2014	Best School - runner-up	School of History, Classics and Archaeology
2012	Best Course	Pioneers of Cultural Communication: Europe, India & Japan (taught by Dr Chris Harding, History)
2009	Best Department	Classics
2009	Best Course - runner-up	American History 2

Major staff awards

Year	Award	Winner
2017	The Ian Campbell Award for Teaching in the Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences	Dr Adam Budd
	Best Support Staff	Karen Howie
	The Ian Campbell Award for Teaching in the Humanities and Social Sciences - runner-up	Dr Malcolm Craig
2015	The Ian Campbell Award for Teaching in the Humanities and Social Sciences	Dr Emile Chabal, History
2014	The Ian Campbell Award for Teaching in the Humanities and Social Sciences	Dr Rob Dinnis, History
2014	Teaching with Technology	Dr David Kaufman, History
2014	Best Personal Tutor	Dr Ulf-Dietrich Schoop, Archaeology
2014	Best Personal Tutor - runner-up	Dr David Kaufman, History
2013	Best Research or Dissertation Supervisor - runner-up	Dr Kathleen McSweeney, Archaeology
2013	Award for Teaching in the College of Humanities and the Social Science	Dr Stephan Malinowski, History

2013	Best Feedback	Dr Robert Crowcroft, Archaeology
2012	Innovative Teaching - runner-up	Dr Chris Harding, History
2010	Best Feedback	Dr Fabian Hilfrich, History
2009	Best Research Supervisor - runner-up	Dr Lloyd Llewelyn-Jones, Classics
2009	Employable Skills - runner-up	Dr Michael Lurie, Classics